MISCELLANEOUS BUSINESS

On motion of Representative Garn, the House voted to have the words of Governor Leavitt and Mitt Romney printed upon the pages of the House Journal.

REMARKS BY GOVERNOR MICHAEL O. LEAVITT

More than a decade ago, the people of Utah, in a grand public expression of optimism for the future, voted to make an investment in Utah as a winter sports capital. A bond was passed for some $59 million for the purpose of building facilities that would enhance our capacity to invite the world here for the purpose of the Olympic Winter Games.

It was not passed narrowly; it was passed by a large measure. And from that point forward, the people of this state put energy into inviting the world and preparing for their arrival. There was, along the way, a commitment made, to ourselves, that we would organize these games in a fashion that would be managed within the Olympic-available revenues, that the taxpayers of our state would not be asked to pay for the games or to bear the responsibility. There were many who were skeptics. There were times when the task seemed hard, but today we celebrate the keeping of that commitment and an acknowledgment that our optimism was well placed.

Now much has been said and will be said about what a remarkable event and terrific experience it's been, what a historic moment it's been. But today we pause to acknowledge the fact that we were true to ourselves in that commitment. There are a number of people that need to be recognized. I'd like to acknowledge the state Olympic officers, John Fowler and Lane Beattie, and their respective staffs, particularly Leo Memmott, who has been so helpful in the course of the last days and representing at least the State's interests in that process. I'd like to acknowledge Lynne Ward, from my office, who played an important role in our part of this equation. But there is one person that I want, as governor, to make certain that you and the world know was in largest measure, I think, responsible for our capacity to do this, beyond the commitment that was made by our people, beyond the resolute agreement that we had, and that Mitt Romney adopted when he stepped in at a very difficult and troubled time. I'd like to recognize Frasier Bullock, the Chief Operating Officer of the games, and ask you to step forward.

Frasier held us to the discipline of the difference between something we would like to do and something we had to do. Not only did we manage these games within available Olympic revenues, we did it in grand style, and for that the Olympic movement and Utahns will forever be grateful. Before I turn the microphone to Mitt Romney, who has received many accolades and deserves many more, may I just remind all of us that when the flame was extinguished on closing ceremonies, it did not represent a landing; it represented a launch, that those 17 days were simply the beginning of what I believe must be a thousand days to fully utilize the opportunity that we have, looking at a horizon of ten thousand days. The brand of Utah is now known across this planet and the inherent promise is one of competence, of natural beauty, and of great people. I'm proud to be a Utahn today and I'm appreciative of all that's been done, and I'd like now, in introducing Mitt Romney, to say that at a difficult and troubling time in this state, he stepped forward in a way that he could uniquely step forward. There was a moment when the two of us talked about the demands of the future and the risks involved, and I expressed to him the commitment that had been made, that we would operate under available Olympic revenues, and he adopted it, stood for it, and assured that it happened, and I salute you, Mitt, for all you have done and all that you mean to this state today and in the future. Thank you.

REMARKS BY MITT ROMNEY:

Thank you, Governor, thank you.

I hope the members of the Senate here will allow me to say a few of the same things I said in their chamber just a moment ago, but I want to say first, thank you to the Governor for his support. He alluded to the early days. As I came here, I asked to meet with him on several occasions in his office and also at the Governor's Mansion, and reviewed with him the state of where we were, and it was more bleak than I had anticipated when I accepted the job. I went through with him my concerns that this day might never come; that perhaps we wouldn't be able to give these big cardboard checks to the state and to the UAF, and that I wondered if we could ever get there. I didn't know that we could find enough costs to cut. I didn't know if we could find new sponsors, because all the usual suspects had signed up. I didn't know if we'd be able to sell, not the $80 million of tickets that were sold in Nagano, but the $180 million of tickets that were necessary to balance our budget. There were a lot of things that gave me a great deal of concern and the Governor was steady and forthright and fully committed and supportive of the effort that we then campaigned for for the next three years, and I express appreciation to him and to his entire team. To you, also; in visiting both chambers I received a warm welcome and, as I had taken out a commitment that many would have preferred we didn't take, but that we had made a commitment and that we would fulfill it, to host the world, you supported that fully and have been there at every step. There's not a single measure that we asked for your help in that these bodies did not come together to provide to make sure that the games would go forward successfully, and I thank you for that.

I want to thank, also, I neglected in previous conversations to talk about John Fowler. He was a great help but, let me tell you, this guy here, Lane Beattie, has been an Olympic hero. He deserves a medal around his neck. I know that Leo has supported him, and others have worked together with him, but there have been so many agencies, federal and state, and so many departments of government, from counties and various commissions and cities and towns that have all pulled - you need to do this, you need to do that - and they've come to us, and you know what we've been able to do? We've been able to say, "Lane, could you call this person back for us and deal with that?" and Lane was able to make sure that, instead of being pulled in all directions, we all came together, and all of the communities and all of the elements in this state pulled in one direction, and those things allowed us to have great games. I want you to know that I have never had more pride in being able to work with an organization than I've had working with the team at the Salt Lake Organizing Committee. My predecessors selected many of these individuals and they are superb. I was happy enough to have worked with Frasier Bullock in a previous career some years ago, and sheepishly I asked him if he would come join me in this. I actually didn't ask him. I sheepishly said, "Do you know someone who might be willing to join me?", and he was kind enough to recognize that I'm not as bold as I ought to be, and say, "Are you asking me?" The answer was, of course, yes, and Frasier joined this effort and has been just a master in organizing all of the, initially, financial and then operational responsibilities for the games. He's done a fabulous job, and the team that's come together, some who have been announced or mentioned and others who haven't, it's an extraordinary group. I've never seen a stronger management team, and I've worked in companies all over the country, all of whom took a reduction in their prospects or in their compensation to be part of this effort. I want to tell you also that I appreciate our board of directors. It's a big one. Bob Garff has had a challenge keeping them all in one corral, and they've done a wonderful job, and Bob has, to make sure that, again, that the board was able to pull in one direction and get these games to be successful. I'm pleased that the games worked without the kinds of distractions that took the world away from the heroics of the athletes. These games are being heralded around the world as being highly successful not because of, "wasn't this the best computer program you ever saw", and "wasn't that bus just working perfectly." No, it's because all that was invisible. It all worked so well that we could see the athletes, and we could hear their stories, and that's what covered the pages of the world; nothing distracted from that. And then something else made these great games, and that is the passion and heart, the hospitality and friendship of the people of Utah, who were not only on the streets, but the people who were the volunteers. Let me tell you: someone did a calculation. We got a call yesterday from the Wall Street Journal and they said, by our calculation, if you had to hire all those people that you had as volunteers, it would have cost you an extra $60 million. Now I haven't done the analysis; that may be a crazy number, but you can figure out, if we didn't have those volunteers, 24,500, we wouldn't have a big check today if we had to go out and hire all the people that did that work, and more important than the check is, we wouldn't have had games of heart and passion. The world loves this state and loved this city and loved these games because of what they saw in the people who drove them, took their tickets, pushed the brooms, cleaned the ice; that's what made these games so unique and so powerful, and among the world's best games ever.

These games were successful because of the people of Utah; those who are citizens, who made a bet and investment that's going to pay back very well; those who were volunteers, who gave 17 straight days, and those who will be in the Paralympics giving more time. Those who were donors, who gave over $50 million. First time in Olympic history that an organizing committee went out and asked for money from donors. We raised over $50 million; no sponsorships, just "here's money to make the games successful." Utah companies, by my calculation, over $100 million in sponsorships from Utah companies. This community, with all of its different branches and the various elements of the fabric of the Utah communities, came together to make sure these games were successful, and for all of that I have a great deal of appreciation. I mentioned in the other house, as well, that a friend of mine watched the closing ceremonies from his roof. Not being in the ticketed section, he wanted to see the fireworks, heard they were going off about 9:00, and he sat on his roof and my understanding from his daughter is that, as he was watching, tears, came pouring down his cheeks and as he looked at those fireworks, the reason, he explained, was that he thought back 150 years ago when people poor as church mice came pouring into this valley with almost nothing, and to think that, today, we've been able to host the world. They all came here to great games and saw a marvelous display of our cultures, our history, our people, our heritage. What a great thing!

Now let me add that I think it's wonderful to be able to pay back the citizens the $59 million they loaned to build these venues. I am pleased as punch to have a big check here, and am happy to announce that it's already cleared; it's in your bank account. So with no further adieu, if you'll bring the first check. Frasier Bullock, if you and I can hold this and present this to George Garwood, who's president of the League of Cities and Towns. Governor, also. I just am so pleased. It says $58,511,700; I think we've already paid a little more in the past, so we're at the full amount that was promised, and it has cleared, so don't cash this one or we'll be out of balance. Thank you.

Now, if I can ask Randy Dryer to come up here as well, we have another check for Randy Dryer. This is a remarkable thing. Not only did these games break even and meet all of their obligations to build facilities and pay for people's salaries and so forth, the games have provided, as you know, a $40 million amount that goes into the Legacy Fund to maintain these athletic facilities indefinitely, and we hope it will be indefinitely and that additional funds can be raised by the UAF to make sure these facilities are always here. We don't want them to fall apart like they did at Lake Placid. We want Utah and Salt Lake City to be the heart of winter sport in North America, and this contribution of $40 million goes a long way to making that reality. Frasier, if you'll present Randy and the Governor with this check, we'd appreciate it - another $40 million, also cleared.

With that, Mr. President, we turn the time back to you with appreciation and look forward to doing this again in four years when the games come back.

Gov. Leavitt: I would like to make one more comment on my behalf, as well as on Mitt's, and I feel confident he would appreciate this. There are so many people who deserve to be recognized, who will not be recognized because of the press of time and the press of circumstances, and the sheer numbers, that something needs to be said. There is a monument in Washington called the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier to recognize all of those who fell in battle or those who made great sacrifice. There should be, I believe, a similar recognition. It should be the award of the unrecognized volunteer or the unrecognized hero who served in critical roles. There is one person I want to nominate from my own standpoint to represent all of them. It's the person who many of you worked with and all of you know, who represented me on the SLOC trustee group, who was the chairman of the finance committee, and who bears large responsibility for what you saw today, Nolan Karras.
